

TRANSLATION

Bho Roosterman (37),

costumier

"I bought a bed on Marktplaats for € 250. I tried out new mattresses in a shop first and then bought them through the internet. Saved me a nice € 300 per mattress.

My walk-in closet is full to bursting. I don't like new clothes, everybody wears that. With my size 48 I am more successful in second hand shops. In the picture I'm wearing necklaces I picked up at H&M for € 50, and at a monster sale of Malen Birger I bought a jacket for € 140, a top for € 100 and a watch for € 1600. Indeed, I sometimes fall for something expensive.

I'm a total shopaholic. My work contributes to that. Because I do the styling for films and commercials, I have to buy a lot. For example, we go with a small group of girls to the sample sales of a PR-bureau in Naarden twice a year. One time when the road was blocked, I became totally hysterical because I was in danger of being fifteen minutes too late. Thankfully, my assistant Hanneke was waiting for me with two arms full of stuff she had already grabbed.

I sometimes drive my husband, Jeroen, crazy. I now have a new rule. When I buy ten new things, I have to get rid of ten things. I had to get rid of a part of my stuffed animals collection. The deer and the goat no longer live with us, unfortunately. We miss them terribly."

BHOROOSTERMAN.COM